August Membership Report

Report Date: August 2, 2026

Monthly executive report summarizing GC membership performance, acquisition, retention, and recovery through the latest reporting period.

TOTAL ACTIVE MEMBERSHIP	NET MEMBERSHIP CHANGE	YEAR-TO-DATE GROWTH	TWELVE-MONTH CHANGE
525,382	+14,918	+81,139	+25.0%
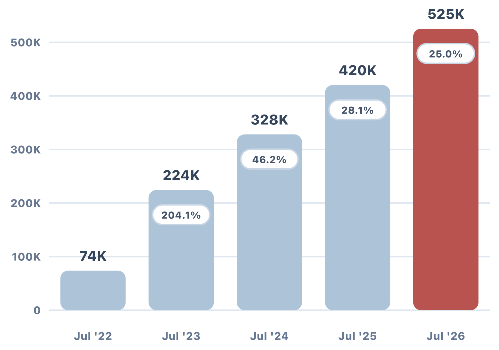
2.9% vs prior month	July net active members	+18.3% vs December	vs July 2025

YEAR OVER YEAR GROWTH

Active Members by Year

Same month across years, back to 2022.



WHAT LEADERSHIP SHOULD KNOW

Key Takeaways

- Overall membership is strong
  Active membership remains well ahead of last year, but the lift is being driven by stronger retention, not higher acquisition.
- Acquisition is softer year over year
  Year-to-date new golfers are down versus 2025, making renewal performance more important to overall membership growth.
- Retention is sustaining momentum
  On-time renewal reached 83.4% in July, well above 66.0% last July. The cohort view also shows 69.2% active beyond 13 months across eligible cohorts.

WHAT LEADERSHIP SHOULD KNOW

Key Takeaways

- Acquisition trend is concerning
  YTD new GHIN numbers are down -2.3% versus Jan-July 2025, and July was down -14.1% versus last year.
- Monthly source mix is shifting
  Organic / Untagged represented 49.7% of July new golfers, while YTD source mix remains concentrated in GHIN Trials and untagged activity.
- Retention is backstopping growth
  Despite softer acquisition, active membership remains up because renewal performance and retained members are carrying more of the growth load.

GC Retention

Retention measures renewal performance and durability across the active membership base.

JULY ON-TIME RENEWAL RATE	JULY 12M ROLLING RETENTION	ACTIVE TODAY	INACTIVE TODAY
83.4%	79.0%	525,382	264,739
vs 66.0% last July	vs 73.5% last July	August 2, 2026	August 2, 2026

WHAT LEADERSHIP SHOULD KNOW

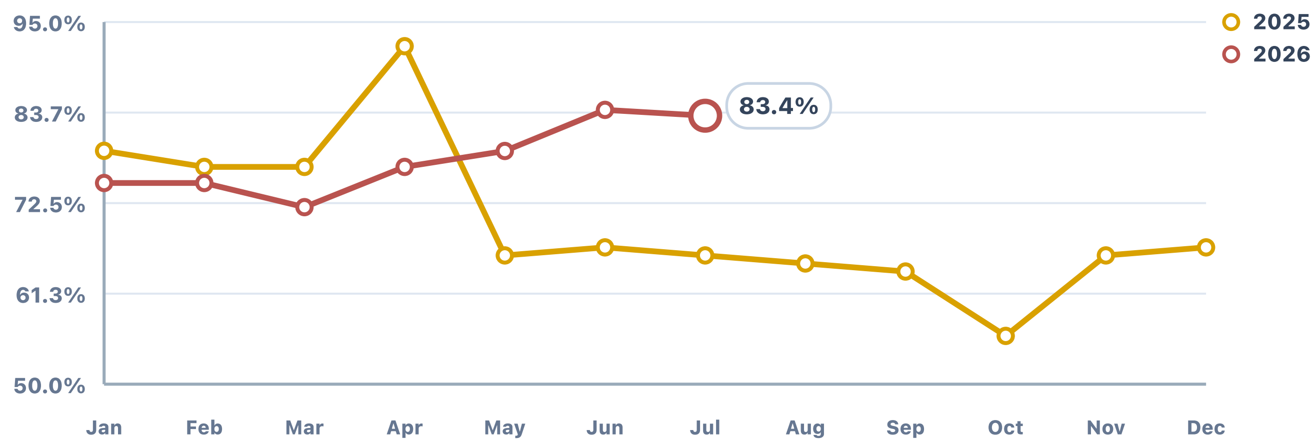
Key Takeaways

Retention is up significantly following the May auto-renewal changes, with July on-time renewal at 83.4% versus 66.0% last July. That retention lift is a major reason year-to-date membership growth remains strong despite softer acquisition.

RETENTION TREND

On-Time Renewal Rate by Month

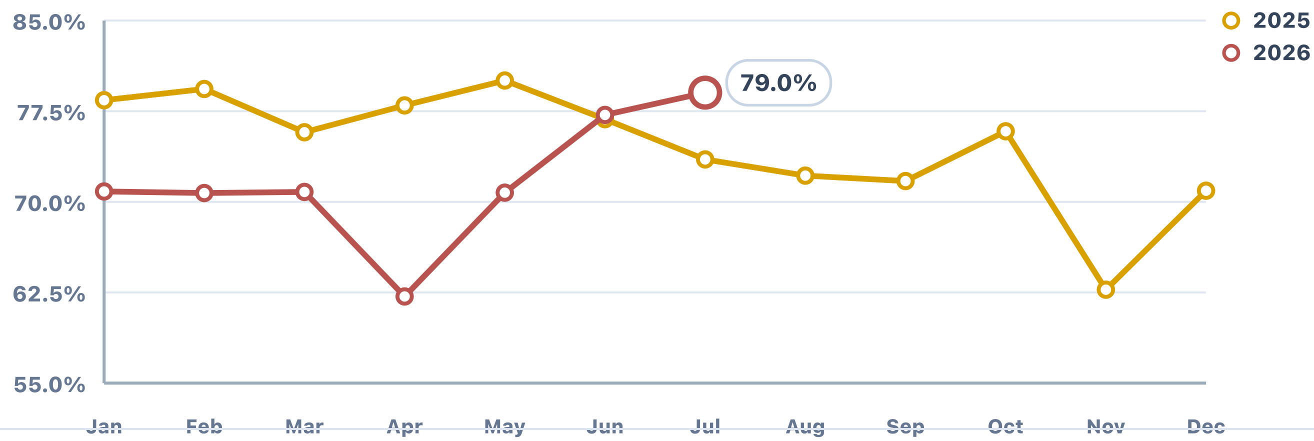
Share of golfers up for renewal in the month who renewed on time.



ROLLING RETENTION

12-Month Rolling Retention

Share of golfers active 12 months prior to the report date who are still active as of the report date.



GC Recovery

Recovery measures inactive golfers who returned to active membership during the reporting period.

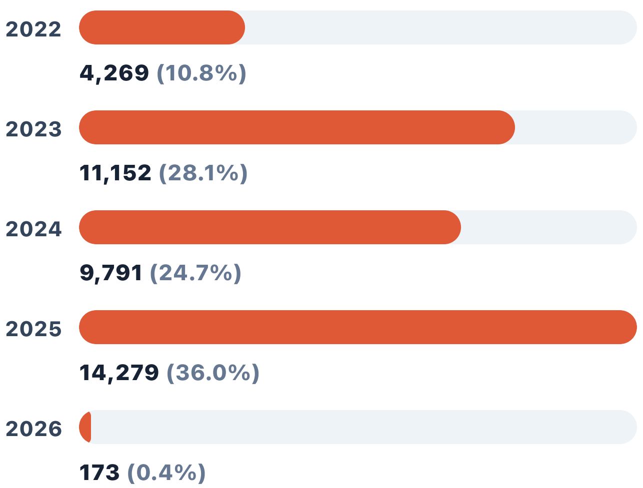
2026 Recoveries by Membership Creation Year



WHAT LEADERSHIP SHOULD KNOW

Key Takeaways

- Win-back automation is the opportunity
  Recovery can become an easier source of member wins if expired-member outreach is automated and scaled nationally.
- Retention team is testing the model
  The retention team has launched a win-back campaign to test whether this approach can work beyond a one-off effort.
- Expired members remain reachable
  Golfers from creation years as far back as 2022 are rejoining, suggesting there is no clear statute of limitations on asking lapsed members to return.

ANALYSIS

What the Results Suggest

Active membership is strong, but new golfer acquisition is down.

Active membership remains well ahead of last year. That is good news. But new golfer acquisition is down versus 2025, while retention is materially stronger. The current results are being supported by retention, not by stronger new golfer growth.

Acquisition needs the most attention.

Year-to-date new golfers are down versus 2025, and July new golfers were also down year over year. Retention is helping offset the decline, but the bigger opportunity is getting more new golfers.

Retention is already doing its job.

July on-time renewal was well above last July, and 12-month rolling retention is also ahead. There may be small gains left, but retention is not the main problem in the current data.

The acquisition story may benefit from a new perspective.

If new golfer acquisition is down, the question is not only how many conversions paid media produced. The bigger question is whether we are telling the right story, to the right golfers, in a way that makes a Handicap Index feel relevant, useful, and worth having.

Paid conversions may not equal new demand.

Some paid conversions may come from golfers who were already likely to sign up. Leadership should look beyond conversion totals and ask whether marketing is creating new interest, or mostly paying to capture demand that already exists.

Win-back is a practical secondary opportunity.

Recovery is ahead year to date, and members from older creation years are still returning. Automated expired-member outreach is worth testing as a way to bring back lapsed members.

LEADERSHIP QUESTIONS

Questions for the Next Review

TOPIC	QUESTION	OWNER	TIMING
Acquisition	Who owns the plan to address softer new golfer creation versus 2025?	Leadership	Next review
Story	Are we telling the right story, to the right golfers, with a message that makes a Handicap Index feel worth having?	Marketing	Fall planning
Paid Media	Are paid campaigns creating new interest, or mostly capturing golfers who were already likely to sign up?	Marketing / Analytics	Before budget review
Win-back	What results would justify scaling expired-member outreach nationally?	Retention	After test

NEAR-TERM WATCHOUT

Do not let strong total membership hide the acquisition slowdown. The report is positive overall, but new golfer growth
